Director DevOps

HealthEdge | 7 June 2026

Dear Hiring Manager,

Your JD names the mission directly: take the organisation towards predictive pipelines and an SRE-based model. That is a transformation I have led twice from scratch -- and I have the measurable outcomes to prove it.

At IRIS Software, I built ADP's SRE practice from four engineers to forty, across India, Canada, and the US. Before I arrived, incidents were reactive and escalation was chaotic. I defined the SLO/SLI framework, introduced error budget governance, stood up chaos engineering using Keptn to surface fault scenarios before they became outages, and wired Dynatrace alerts into automated Ansible remediation. MTTR dropped by more than 40% inside twelve months. Alongside that, I designed and delivered modeas -- a containerised, pipeline-driven delivery platform that handled 200+ builds and deployments per hour, eliminated over 10,000 manual operational hours per year, and pushed deployment cadence up by 600%. That is the predictive pipeline model your JD is describing. I built it. I can build it again.

On production SaaS at scale: before IRIS, I spent seven years at Microsoft as the sole Production Engineering owner for Sales and Marketing SaaS platforms serving US, EMEA, and APAC subsidiaries -- tens of thousands of users, 99.99% uptime sustained, zero customer-impacting incidents over the full tenure. I absorbed 200% user growth without degrading reliability. The uptime discipline that role demands is precisely what HealthEdge needs in a Director who will own all of DevOps.

On healthcare: my regulated-environment track record comes from banking (SOX/GDPR at RBC, two consecutive clean audit cycles), not healthcare. HIPAA has specific data handling requirements -- I will spend the first thirty days learning them alongside your compliance team. The operating model expertise, the containerisation depth, the SRE transformation playbook, and the people leadership record transfer directly. I am open to Bengaluru for the right scope and relocation support, and I would welcome a brief call to confirm alignment on both before we go further.

Yours sincerely,

Pavan Kumar Nayakanti
